

ABOUT EDWARD M. GARNES, JR.

Atlanta native Edward M. Garnes, Jr. is a journalist, counselor, educator, editor, producer, and activist. He is the founder of From Afros to Shelltoes: Art Action & Conversation, a series of inter-generational cultural productions that champion emotional healing, solution focused dialogue, and arts programming to empower hip hop heads, youth, and elders.

Redefining clichéd visions of leadership, From Afros to Shelltoes (FATS) employs progressive strategies to move the community from rhetoric to reality. FATS service and productions include Dave Chapelle's Block Party, Katrina On The Ground, MTV Jams, Hands on Atlanta MLK Service Summit, National Black Arts Festival, Atlanta Hip Hop Film Festival, and the Southern Poetry Conference.

Hailed as a national expert in diversity and multicultural counseling, Garnes and fellow activist Kevin Powell kicked off 2004 launching the State of Black Men National Tour. Dr. Joseph White, noted psychologist and author of Black Men Emerging, calls Garnes a new school leader "equipped with the courage, resilience, and dedication to take us to the next level." On the forefront of institutional change, he co-founded Depauw University's Student Coalition for Awareness, Revolution and Education (S.C.A.R.E.) and assisted university administration and legal counsel in the drafting of DePauw's formal Hate Crime Policy as an undergraduate. Garnes received his BA in English Writing with specializations in Mass Comm and Black Studies from Depauw. He also worked as a Black Studies Department Teachers Assistant and administrator in Multicultural Affairs.

A Competitive Doctoral Fellow in Urban Counseling, he received his M.A. in Counseling from Michigan State University. Garnes has worked as a diversity and leadership development consultant for the Washington D.C. firm Woodard & Associates executing projects with the US Department of Agriculture and the US Department of Housing.

A finalist for the Fulton County Arts Council Dialog Literary Fellowship, he has shared the stage with such legends Nikki Giovanni, Amiri Baraka, and The Last Poets. A nationally renowned writer, he is currently a music contributor to Creative Loafing, Atlanta's revered alternative news weekly. Garnes is an award-winning journalist who has worked as the Entertainment Editor for Atlanta's Good News (GN) Magazine and as a contributor for Upscale, the Southeast Performer, and Elemental. Garnes has profiled and interviewed such cutting edge artists as Spike Lee, Outkast, Gerald Levert, DMC of Run DMC, T-Boz of TLC, and Raphael Saadiq. Featured as a cast member of the Black Family Channel's Spoken, hosted and executive produced by Apollo legend Jessica Care Moore, he is currently penning In Search of Dr. Garnes, a provocative book of essays on black leadership, hip-hop, and higher education. Garnes is the co-owner of Babuke Brothers, LLC, a media relations, entertainment, and arts programming firm.
